Google, comply with the GDPR — even your own cache disagrees with you. Google is lying even about deleting forum posts — read this, the proof is right here in it.
https://discuss.ai.google.dev/t/https-discuss-ai-google-dev-t-hi-im-lilian-and-the-first-step-is-admitting-it-so-i-worked-for-a-marketing-company-for-three-years-176830-repost/177012
https://archive.ph/dUvag
Dear Kleanthi,
I am forwarding the most critical piece of evidence to date, which definitively proves Google's systemic violation of the GDPR Right to Erasure (Article 17).
Please review the attached screenshots carefully. They document an experiment involving a completely deleted Reddit account (u/HugeScore3158). When confronted, Google's own AI Overview system explicitly confessed to retrieving and exposing data from this deleted account by pulling it from Google's secret backend caches.
The AI literally quoted word-for-word posts from an account that no longer exists, proving that Google's data processing pipeline completely ignores user deletion requests. The data is kept, indexed, and actively served to users long after the source has been permanently deleted.
Google cannot deny this, as their own system output is the very proof of the violation. This perfectly aligns with my findings regarding Google AI Studio: their "Delete" functions are merely UI illusions, while the backend continuously hoards the data.
Please add these screenshots to my case file. This is the "smoking gun" that proves their entire deletion pipeline is a fraud.
Kind regards,
György Istókovics (Bitu79)

The current operation of AI Studio — specifically the multi-year retention of user prompts — is not compliant with the GDPR. In my lawsuit, I will request the court to suspend AI Studio's operation, because its present data-handling practices are unlawful and cannot continue.
